

RMIT Building 11 (Old Melbourne Gaol)

RMIT Building 11 is one of the most distinctive surviving bluestone buildings from the early foundation of Melbourne.

Built in stages from 1859 to 1864, the Old Melbourne Gaol's former gate-house, governor's residence, female hospital, bath house and chapel form a cohesive formal group of 3 wings around a handsome central courtyard.

The refurbishment project will ensure the protection of this important heritage listed building.

The complex will be occupied by Student Services as flexible academic offices and meeting spaces. The Gaol forecourt and inner courtyard will be interwoven into the city campus' network of open spaces.
